Make your own Shakshuka

Shakshuka is popping up on brunch menus all over north America. This vegetarian dish is usually served in a sizzling pan straight from the oven. At its base, shakshuka is tomato sauce with cooked eggs on top. Although it's a popular brunch or breakfast dish here, it can be eaten any time of the day -- and it's a great way to get your kids to eat their veggies. Try adding cheese, spinach, or chili peppers to your own version of shakshuka.

Make your own Israeli Salad

Israeli salad can typically be found at the many falafel street stands all over Israel. It is served on its own as a side dish or inside a pita sandwich wrap. This fresh, light, and colorful salad is sure to become a favorite for your family. Chopped tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, and parsley combine with a drizzled dressing of lemon juice, olive oil, garlic, and mint leaves. Goes great in a pita with falafel, hummus, and tahini, but also works as a side dish with any middle eastern, Greek, or even north African food.

Poster Tales for Yom Ha'atzmaut

Poster Tales is a series of Israeli-made posters that originated with the founding of the Jewish state. Each year, Israeli artists submit their posters and designs in the hope that one will be featured as Israel's Independence Day image. Each poster – with its vivid imagery, symbols and themes – encapsulates a time and a people that shows the progression of Israel through the decades. Below is a tiny taste of what the curriculum comprises, and an example lesson plan for tailoring the resource to other holidays as well.

Go to this link to download the series.
